

I saw you wanted people to share your experience with James for his nomination and I would love to share some input. James Bethea is more than just a cyclist he is inspiring, silly, strong, cool, caring, and I am very lucky to call James a friend. I would say James is one of the reasons I truly love mountain biking he has taught me so many valuable lessons about just having fun on your bike because every single time James throws his leg over a bike he's having fun. James's philosophy of fun is probably the reason I'm a national champion and the person I am today. So basically I am saying you would have to be an absolute fool not to put James in the mtb Hall of Fame.

Sincerely,
Andrew Morris
